

TECH NOTES TEKTRONIX HAS PARTNERED WITH TELOGY,
04/30/2001
Portland Oregonian
SUNRISE

Tektronix has partnered with Telogy, a multivendor test equipment supplier based in Menlo Park, Calif., to establish a trade-in program enabling customers to trade in used equipment when purchasing new products from Tektronix. Telogy then can purchase, refurbish and resell the trade-ins. Beaverton-based Tektronix is a test, measurement and monitoring equipment-maker.

Portland-based Zairmail has launched Zairmail Express Direct, a direct-mail service combining its software architecture and distributed network of regional printing and mailing facilities, to enable the delivery of direct mailings originated on the Internet in one to two business days.

Creativepro.com and Random Eye Technologies, a Toronto-based software developer for the creative design industry, have launched Image Grabber, a service that enables Creativepro.com users to search, download and purchase images from stock image agencies worldwide. Creativepro.com, a subsidiary of ImageX.com, is a Portland-based Web portal for creative print and Web professionals.

CITGO International Latin America, a subsidiary of CITGO Petroleum, has selected The TAK Group to build and deploy a private digital marketplace in partnership with Intesa, a Venezuelan information technologies company. The TAK Group, headquartered in Hudson, Ohio, has its technology center in Portland.

Electro Scientific Industries has reported a $5 million order for multiple laser semiconductor processing systems from Samsung Electronics to be used at Samsung's Kiheung facility in Korea for the production of advanced memory devices. ESI is headquartered in Portland.

Portland-based Inspiration Software has been awarded a Seal of Approval from The National Parenting Center for its Kidspiration software designed for kindergarten through third-grade students.